

New website to press for Inclusionary Housing Programs

March 9, 2010 | Wellesley Institute

The Wellesley Institute has launched an inclusionary housing micro-site that includes research and policy materials on inclusionary housing practices in Canada and case studies from the United States.

Inclusionary housing programs are municipal programs that rely upon the development regulations and approval process to have private developers provide some portion of the housing within their new market projects as affordable housing.

The new website has been created to assist community members, activists, government planners, policy makers and housing developers to gain a better appreciation of Inclusionary Housing as a policy and program tool to increase the supply of affordable housing in our neighbourhoods and communities.
